

Last stage of our trip and of this series, From Switzerland with love, and we do it with the French Venice, Annecy, a city located in the lake of its name. Although when we arrived it was raining, after a rest at the hotel we were able to draw the head and walk in the streets. We dined at a central location a cheese fondue. It was not bad but a little heavy for our stomachs not used to. We made the visit the next day when they were still setting up we market stalls. A delight to see how they download all the fresh products and we take a good French coffee with bread with butter and croissants for breakfast.

Medieval environment

Bike

Colour houses

Colours

Over the years

In the middle

The French Venice

Walk by the Lake

Well, that's all folks! I'll be a while without updating the blog because I need to work on new projects I have in mind. I hope you can see them. A kiss to all.